A Project of Shared Humanity for a Shared Prosperity

More than half of a century after the creation of the institutions of Bretton Woods, the world registered the formation of a new international agency that seeks to promote multilateralism and avows to counter hegemonic expansion of the West: the BRICS (Brazil, Russia, India, China, and South Africa).

The creation of the BRICS signals a sense of hope for the members of that institution and for other countries of the world whose legitimate aspiration for self-determination has been undermined by repetitive assaults of the western world.

The existence of such a new block which gives a power of choice of choice to countries of the global south is somehow reminiscent of forged alliances of the past in the name of freedom, justice, and equality, mainly the Non-Alignment Movement. The New Dawn aims at highlighting the legitimate aspirations of people, communities, countries in their respective quest for freedom and justice.

Who We Are

Seizing the opportunity and taking advantage of the new historical developments on the international scene, a number of freedom lovers, and justice seekers who have working together to promote internationalism and Pan-Africanism have decided to join hands in order to create an institution, which would advance, protect and preserve the respective sovereignties of country of the global south and of the BRICS countries.

New Dawn is a multidimensional institution which is a think tank and grassroots organization with a multi-media and a social media digital representation. It intends to rally activists, policy makers, entrepreneurs, media personalities, artists, community development agents of the BRICS countries around a plan for a better humanity, and for a new world of justice for all.

Mission

The “New Dawn” contributes in the building of a new humanity, a new world in which people are bound by their common humanity and benefit from their shared prosperity by raising the awareness about the need for a new dawn in the world,

Alternative Worldviews

“New Dawn” will highlight alternative worldviews that emphasize humanness and social justice and which put the human being in the center of all policies and political, cultural and economic interests. Looking into the histories of the BRICS countries, one could observe some philosophical worldviews that inspire generations of people to pursue their dreams and hopes for freedom, justice, and communal empowerment: Mahamat Gandhi’s Satyagraha (purest of soul-force), Ubuntu (humanness) advocated and promoted by Nelson Mandela, the Russian legendary collectivism, the Chinese Confucianism, the Bolsa Familia from Brazil, all based on humanness, social justice, nobleness of human essence, and togetherness should be the pillars of the New World that welcomes multilateralism, multiple modernities, the right to difference over universalism and Western hegemony.

What We Do

New Dawn organizes monthly lectures and conferences on topic of interest in line with the mission and the agenda of a new world of freedom and justice. It organizes also educational and cultural exchange programs, cultural diplomacy activities, and visual art exhibitions. Members of the organization and stakeholders of the BRICS will engage in networking, sharing of experiences and in joint ventures. Circulation of knowledge and of technology will cement the inescapable web of reciprocity and of the common destiny of stakeholders.

We will also facilitate joint ventures among members of the business community, help promote their communal dreams, and the collective communal development in order to foster their common wealth.

The digital multi-media platform will shed light on the actions and endeavors of these dreamers, shakers, and movers. New Dawn will put emphasis on the common struggles for the sovereignty of the BRICS’ countries, mainly Africa heavily under neo-colonialism and on their collective effort to elevate humanness for a better humanity.

The platform will serve as a point of contact of people of all walks of life from different races, religions and regions in the beautiful symphony of brotherhood and sisterhood in the name of freedom, justice, equality, sovereignty, and humanness.
